Charity law in New Zealand - looking to the future

The Charities Commission of New Zealand has been considering how to develop the law of charity in New Zealand in ways that will keep pace with society’s values.

The Charities Commission engaged Myles McGregor-Lowndes and Matthew Turnour of the Australian Centre for Philanthropy and Nonprofit Studies to advise and propose some options.

The result was an options paper outlining potential avenues for development. 'Options for the development of the New Zealand Law of Charities' is available at http://eprints.qut.edu.au/49835/
